RACES AT MORRIS PARK. Sloane won four races out of six at Morris Park vesterday. Some weeks ago, when Sloane was guilty of grand largeny of that sort at another racecourse, the stewards promptly put him on the ground as a warning that he must not be so presumptuous as to ride too well. It was reported at that time that Speaker-Starter Flynn had lodged a ferocious complaint against Sloane. Flynn is ow on the ground and Sloane is still the Boy on Horseback. The listeners to racetrack chat and gossip have caught an echo of a faint and uncertain murmur which suggests that some people thought it possible that a friend of Flynn's might possibly have made a bet on the races. Any starter who bets, either directly or indirectly, or who ventures to hint to any friend how that friend might bet to advantage, may be in peril of losing the flag at short notice. Suppose, however, that the lives of all the starters who have flourished in this country ould be written with a frankness similar to candor with which James Anthony Froude told the thole truth concerning his friend Thomas Carlyle! Could that set of the Lives of the Starters be fitly ranged on the shelves of our public libraries by the side of the series of the Lives of the Saints?

The sad blunt truth is that America has not been so prolific of spotless starters as she has been o stainless statesmen. Starters who bet or who encourage their kin to bet do not merit praise. But the perfect starter is rare, and most of the men have sent horses on their winding ways in this country have been neither saints nor sages. Bet-ting starters, however, are objectionable, although of all the officials who have held the flag since thoroughbred contests were first seen in the United States, probably seven out of ten at least risked money on some of the starts over which they pre-at Morris Park, is a track superintendent of thorough skill. But as a starter he is an exeruciating failure, and he ought to resign his place without delay. Mr. Clarke has many friends, and he pos-sesses a broad range of pleasant traits. But he was tried as a starter years ago, and he made it clear then that he could not fill the place as it should be filled. His starts then were wild and woful. They were even worse yesterday. Mr. Clarke should get out to-day. He means well, but he is so unsuccessful as a starter that he should not afflict the turf longer. Turfmen have suffered much. They lived through the dismal months while race-track stewards blinked and winked at the wickedness which was perpetrated by thimble-riggers at Gravesend, Brighton Beach and Sheepshead Bay this year. Certain stewards reinstated Hamilton. in stewards tried to give W. C. Daly a clean but of health. And certain stewards failed to take each and Sheepshead Bay, which were so evil in appearance at least that the stewards who failed make searching inquiries were disgracefully deretict. These things took place while Mr. Belmont was away. The air has been cleared somesince Mr. Belmont returned, and the action neken in the cases of Grannan, Wallace and Martin has been beneficial. But even since Mr. Belmont tin has been beneficial. But even since Mr. Relmont came back, William Sims and Samuel Doggett Inveriden several races which ought to induce the Sultan of Turkey to confer upon them the order which he has been distributing lavishly of late to the authors and apologists of atrocities. The Sublime Forte seems to have been decorating almost everytheir who has had anything to do with massacres. Why shouldn't F. Clarke and S. Doggett and W. Sims get Turkish decorations? They have been committing massacres on the turf—massacres of starts and massacres of public form, and cach of them ought to get an Oriental order of spine kind.

adves of starts and massacres of public form. And each of them ought to get an Oriental order of some kind.

October was kind yesterday. It was an autumn afternoon at Morris Park which in weather could not be finer. If the starts had been prompt and good, and if Sims and Dorgactt had been prompt and good, and if Sims and Dorgactt had been prompt and their best form, the contests would have been highly acceptable. But Clarke's blundering with the flag was painful. In the first race Cleophus, the favorite, got off so badly that she had no chance. Sims often acts as if he had a spite gets away well with his mounts when any starting device is used, and he was so slow and clumy this time that Tremargo came in third, instead of winning the race, as he would have done if had been handled with swift skill, keen alertness to be a supplementation of the control of the same of the control of the grand opera tenor. He was not in the right humor yesterday, although Taral rode him. He was at odds on, but even Taral could not do better with him than get third place. Cassette, with Sloane up, led all the way.

Ameer, ridden by Sims, was at odds on for the fifth race, but Sims's riding was as cold and ashy and feeble as is David Bennett Hill's support of Bryan and Sewall in this campaign. So Sloane on Premier beat Sims on Ameer. Here's a suggestion for the Popocratic ticket in the year 1990: William Sims, of Georgia, for President, and Samuel Doggett, of Brooklyn, for Vice-President! How that ticket would run! Almost as well as the Bryan-Sewall ticket is now running. And here's a suggestion for the Popocratic ticket in 1994: Anthony Hamilton, of Harlem, for President, and Frederick Littlefield, of Eatontown, N. J., for Vice-President! How that ticket would run! And for United States States to elect the stewards who reinstated Hamilton, who championed the cause of William C. Daly, and who let the public suffer at Gravesend, Brighton Beach and Sheepshead Bay this year from the operations of the Western coterie and the Canadian clique, while Mr. Belmont was in Europe. And for candidates for Congress pick out turf officials who lack either sufficient intelligence or sufficials on laque while Mr. Belmont was on the other side of the Atlantic.

Mr. Reilly, president of Aqueduct, is not the Mr. Reilly who keeps a hotel. But he is the Mr. Reilly whom the true friends of honest racing speak of so highly. This Mr. Reilly is not in the inner One Hundred and Fifty, nor even in thouter Four Hundred. He is not a member of the Somerset Club of Boston, nor of any of the united weestand, divided-we-fail society clubs in Fifthave. But Mr. Reilly is a man of plain common sense, and he has little use for Father Bill Daly. Mr. Keilly whom the president of Aqueduct, that he wanted square, fair racing at Aqueduct, and nothing cise. And he post it so far as he could get it. And that little one-horse, one-hose track at Aqueduct did

ABSCONDING BANKER CAUGHT.

DELPHIA

Philadelphia, Oct. 15.-Adolphus Cohen, formerly a banker at No. 211 Canal-st., New-York, who is said to have absconded with $500,000, was arrested this afternoon by Detective Donaghy in the Broad st. station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. tective was assisted in the arrest by Alfred De Mayo, of this city, an Italian interpreter; Leonard Morrelli, formerly a partner of Cohen, and John Diu, an Italian citizen. Morrelli was in a cigar He had not seen him since December 24, 1894, when he alleges, Cohen absconded with $500,060 which belonged to a large number of Italian banking houses in New-York and Pennsylvania. When Cohen left cigar store, Morrelli, being unable to speak English fluently, followed his man to the ratiroac Mayo then hucried to the City Hall, where he secured the services of Detective Donaghy, while the others kept Cohen in sight. It was the work of a searched $290 was found in Cohen's pockets. Cohen was arraigned before Magistrate South and was committed to awalt the arrival of requisition papers from New-York. He says that the only charge he denies that he embezzied $500,000.

Mr. Morreili made the following statement:
"Cohen and myself had been in the banking business in Canal-st., in New-York, for almost two years, and no idea of anything wrong concerning him ever occurred to me. As we were doing a good business with our depositors and correspondents in towns outside of New-York, things began to look very promising for us. He was a shrewd man of business, and the smaller merchants of New-York had as much confidence in him as I had. It was or the eve of Christmas, 1894, that I last saw him. On the next banking day I went to our place of business, and was so completely shocked on the discovery I made that I was almost tempted to take my life. All the safes were empty of cash and negotiable securities, and the bank was wrecked. The amount missing was a little over half a million do I waited for some time for my partner to make his appearance, and, thinking that he was sick, sent a messenger to his borne to ascertain the cause of his absence. I awaited with much impatience the answer to my message, and when it cam i was still more greatly shocked. But after a while the truth dawned upon me, and then'l believed that my partner had become an embezzier. As soon as proper officials, and was greatly grieved when I learned that he had sailed for his native home later failed for $100,000. Felix Boofon & Co., of Hazleton, Penn., were compelled to assign for $20,000. Other failures were those of Angelo Demiato, $10,000. M. Lamy, $20,000. P. Polonius, $20,000, Felix Hendillio, $20,000, all of New-York; and Frank Desanto, of Bridgeport, Conn., $20,000. Morrelli did all he could to make good the loss, but he could raise only $50,000. He paid this amount to the creditors, and is now a laboring man.

mann & Co's office, at No. 46 Wall-st., about three years ago purchased the banking house of Palledini against each other in pairs, and the four resulting games were excellent ones. Twenty holes had to be played to decide the match between G. E. Armstrong, of St. Andrews, and N. C. Reynal, of correspondents abroad, and offer to send drafts on correspondents abroad, and offer to send drafts on his correspondents at a low commission. When the drafts were presented for payment in Italy, they were returned as worthless. The money which had been given to Cohen for the drafts he spent in fast living. When his clients complained to him, he would tell them that there had been some mistake which he would at once remedy. In this manner he managed to avoid suspicion for about a year, and the bankers of Mulberry-st were greatly surprised when they learned that he had absconded, they never having doubted his honesty. Several of the lankers who had been defrauded by Cohen manged to get their money by selzing some property lankers who had been defraided by color magnet to get their money by selzing some property which he owned in Rome, Italy, but the majority of them lost every cent. It was thought that he had fled to Europe, and the news of his arrest in Philadelphia created surprise.

Carley sent for an ambulance, and one soon reached the house from Roosevelt Hospital. The doctor gave the woman some relief and then hurried her off to the hospital. In half an hour after she arrived there she had regained consciousness.

Mrs. Heims told Policeman Carley that a man had been in the flat during the evening. She asserted that she did not know the man, and persisted in declaring that she could not remember what he looked like, but volunteered the statement that he was agitated all the time.

Policeman Carley found on a table a card bearing the name of Milton Steinway and the address No. 551 Lexington-ave. The Heims woman said she did not see Mrs. Howard take the polson. She was in another room at the time, and the first she knew of what had happened was when Mrs. Howard ran out to her and fell on the floor.

It is said that Mrs. Howard's father is well off, that her mother is dead, and that Mrs. Howard's family is prominent in this city. The family name could not be learned, however.

Richard V. Harnett, the well-known real estate auctioneer and broker, moved last spring from his dwelling at No. 37 West Thirty-fourth-st, to Seventy-second-sat. He, too, fied before the onward march of business in Thirty-fourth-st, between the two avenues mentioned. Mr. Clews predicts that the street in that section will surpass Twenty-third-st, for business purposes.

M. B. CURTIS'S CALIFORNIA PROPERTY.

EXCHANGED FOR A ST. NICHOLAS-AVE. HOUSE. M. B. Curtis, the actor, and his wife were before Justice Andrews, in the Supreme Court, yesterday as defendants in a suit brought by George and to exchange property at No. 721 St. Nicholas-ave for a ranch and several lots at Peralta Park, Cal. for a ranch and several lots at Perana Park, Cal. Curtis, they stated in evidence, told them that the ranch was worth about $45,000 and yielded an income of $3,000 a year, that the lots were worth $5,000, and made other representations, all of which they have since discovered to be false. The lots were in a swamp and were not laid out. In defence Mrs. M. B. Curtis testified that the lots were valuable. She said that streets had been laid out, graded and macadamized, and she had sold a number of the lots for $500 each and one for $1,000.

Justice Andrews denied a motion to dismiss the complaint, and the case was adjourned until to-day.

THE ELM-ST. WIDENING.

COMPLETED.

nterests have been tied up for several years be cause of the uncertainty over the proposed Elm-st. widening and improvement are to be relieved or their anxieties within a short time. Yesterday the four real estate experts engaged by the commissioners of the improvement plan handed in their teports to A. B. Boardman, of Tracy, Boardman & ex-Judge William G. Choate, Colonel Joel B. Erhardt and William G. Davis. The experts are Morris Wilkins, of E. il. Ludlow & Co.; Frederick Southack of Frederick Southack & Co.; Charles S.

It is fifteen years or more since the Elm-st. widen-ing began to be talked of. The main idea of the bly divert the bulk of it. A cutting through of the two blocks betwen Bleecker-st, and Lafayette Place was involved in the project, and is still included in it. so as to afford a practically new and wide street diverging from Centre-st, at Duane-st, and then taking in Elm-st, to its northern end at Springst. Marion-st, throughout its lergth to Prince-st, and thene Mulberry-st, to the northern side of Bleecker-st, and through the blocks and across Bond and Great Jones sts. to Lafayette Place and Fourth-ave, to Union Square. This is the route which the Rapid Transit Commission is considering for its main underground line Inasmuch as the Rapid Transit Commission has now decided to favor the so-called Elm-st, route, the report of the four experts is of special significance.

Morris Wilkins said yesterday: "The time for us to make our report expired to-day. Our commissions dated from August 15. Each expert was requested to make up his own estimate of values independently of the others, and so far as I am concerned that has been done. The total valuation of property to be taken outright, as well as that indirectly damaged, is between $2,50,000 and $2,000,000.

A FAST FIVE-HEAT RACE. The good little gray mare Agnes Morrell met he match yesterday at the opening of the fall meeting of the Parkway Driving Club in Brooklyn, when after trotting five heats on the half-mile track she had to be content with second money.

For two heats the mare had things all he own way, trotting the miles in 2:22% and 2:22 with own way, trotting the miles in 2,224 and 2,22 with apparent ease. She held the lead to the three-quarter pole in the third round, and apparently had the race won, when M. P. Devy brought Mc-Loughlin Maid up fast in the homestretch and snatched the heat in 2:234. Agnes Morrell was still a favorite in the betting, and she fought game-ly in the next two heats, but with the advantage of the pole the little chestnut mare was just fast enough to beat her a length at the wire each time after a spirited finish. Outside timers caught the fifth heat in 2:21%, but one of the official watches registered 2:224, and the winner received the benefit of the slower record. McLoughlin Maid cut her record down from 2:25½ to 2:22¼. She was bred at Parkville Farm by Charles G. Moser, and was owned until recently by E. T. Bedford, of the Park-Agues Morrell, who made such a hard ler, and is a daughter of his famous old gray road horse, Independence, 2:214. She is now owned at the Syossett Stock Farm, Long Island. The 2:30 race was easily won by the black mare Lady Harrison, owned by William Hoegg, of Harlem. She scored the first winning heat of her career, and quit the race with a record of 2:28%. J. D. Willis, the veteran trotting-horse breeder of J. D. Willis, the veteran trotting-horse breeder of Brooklyn, raised the winner, and formerly drove her on the road. Between heats John H. Shults's three-year-old bay filly, Thistlebud, paced the mile in 2:224, driven by Jerome McKlaney. She moved the last half in 110, and the last quarter in 0.2252, a 2:14 gait. She is a daughter of Thistle, 2:133, and the old-time road mare, Miss Collins, by Ben Fish. The meeting will continue to-day and to-morrow.

SALE OF HORSES AT MORRIS PARK.

The sale of the Eric Stable and of the horses training owned by various turfmen should attract a large crowd to Morris Park to-morrow. A yearling sired by Laureate out of La Tosca will be disposed of. The youngster should cause some lively competition among horsemen, as Laureate has been a success as a sire, both in England and in this country, and La Tosca was easily the champion filly of her time.

TO SEE THE HARVARD-CORNELL GAME.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 15 .- Seats for the Harvardday, October 24, were placed on sale this morning and are seiling rapidly. There is a large demand for seats from out of town. The seating capacity for this game has been considerably enlarged. Only ten seats will be allotted to any one person. The Cornell team has gone into secret practice in preparation for the game, and there is pienty of money being wagered here, even, that Cornell will defeat Harvard.

Salvin THE . WALLACE . COMPANY store of Paul Salvin, at No. 160 Park Row. Salvin had his stock insured against burglars by the United States Casualty Company, of which exchief of Police Byrnes is the third vice-president. A safe in the store was cracked one night recently. There was not much in it, but Salvin made a claim that part of his stock of clothing had been carried away by the burglars who cracked the safe. Mr. Byrnes declared that the burglary was a "fake," and refused to pay the claim. Salvin prepared for a lawsuit. Salvin and his counsel had made to newspaper reporters, and declared that the statements were so libelious that he felt obliged to take notice of them. "They have made such libelious statements," he said, "that they can rest assured they will be prosecuted as the law directs in such cases."

In the afternoon Mr. Byrnes went to the District-Attorney's office with ex-District-Attorney Nicoli, and had a consultation with Assistant District-Attorney Vernon M. Davis, Later Mr. Davis said he thought the statements which were published as having been made by Salvin and his counsel were criminally libelious. He said that if proof could be produced that the statements had been made by Salvin and he counsel were criminally libelious. Mr. Byrnes also said yesterday that he had caused the policy held by Salvin to be cancetied, because he had recognized Salvin as a man who was arrested and held a prisoner at Police Headquarters for a time on suspicion of being connected with a notorious thief named "English Jack.", Salvin was asked about that statement, and he refused to say anything, declaring that he had promised his counsel not to talk. Mr. Solomon said he never knew that Salvin had been arrested.

Another statement made by Mr. Byrnes was that since the company began to insure against burgaries, less than one hundred days ago, it had received claims on account of twenty-one alleged barglarles, of which seventeen were in this city. Fourteen of the claims had been paid by the company, he said. He declined to give more information about the burglarles, but intimated that few of them had been made public. Minna Datker.
